The impact of the "Great Resignation" and so-called "war for talent" is an area of concern.

50%

of the private practice professionals surveyed singled out talent retention and attraction as their firm's biggest challenge.

Lack of innovation exposes talent risks.

regard more efficient processes as their most valued way of working.

81%

29% who said their firm was not innovative would be prepared who said their firm was not to leave because of it.

> "Invest in technology the time saving more than covers the cost."

> > "Better, not more technology.

minutes

to 3 hours per day was spent by law-firm professionals on conducting legal research.

Know-how and precedents solutions were perceived as delivering the greatest positive impact to law firms, followed by legal research tools.

The 2022 Tech & the Law survey was conducted on behalf of Thomson Reuters by Momentum Intelligence between 1st and 15th December 2021. The survey received a total usable sample of 997 responses, including 826 fully completed submissions. This includes 670 for private practice respondents and 156 corporate professional respondents.